Dear Friends:

Our new year has begun in earnest. Ongoing activities that have already started include the writing and production of the newsletter and Kin Kollecting - Vol. XII. Our Vice President, with help from other volunteers, is fleshing out the programs for the remainder of our monthly meetings this year. We already have a "top notch" seminar planned for the March meeting in 1999. Ms. Dorothy (Tincup) Maulden will be our leader and the topic will be researching our American Indian ancestors. Some of our group are working with the Crossett Centennial Coalition to produce the Crossett Centennial Celebration in 1999. The Founders' Day event will be held on June 12, with other activities to continue on into the fall. Our treasurer not only keeps our finances straight but also works with the Kin Kollecting editor to maintain an accurate mailing list for our group. (Do you ever wonder what it takes to make the mailing label on your newsletter each month?)

We receive several letters every month from people who want information about their ancestors in Ashley County. Blanche Turlington is the person who does the research and answers most of these letters. She's good at it!

The people who tirelessly work to keep these kinds of things going for our organization should have a pat on the back from time to time. We need to remember that they're all volunteers and that they only have 24 hours in their days too. I resolve to pass on my thanks to each of them frequently and I'd like to urge you to do so too. There's something else I've resolved to do. For too long now I've promised Rebecca Brown an article for Kin Kollecting and I'm starting a renewed effort to make good on that promise. She sometimes has to work hard to produce the materials that go into the magazine. Some of our people are good to share their county research and general interest genealogical information with her. Let me encourage others of you to venture into that arena. Volunteer!

Index To 1900 Census

Ashley County Arkansas

In 1988-89 Ashely County Genealogical Society members abstracted this index as a guide in finding families and individuals residing in Ashley County, Arkansas, when the 1900 census was enumerated. The index is listed in the order it appears on census microfilm by family number and by township. As always, we recommend that researchers use the index for assistance only, and that the original entire entry should be read. There is much other information about all persons in the household, including month and year of birth and relationship to head of the house. The abstractors attempted to be as accurate as possible with name spellings, etc., but handwriting is difficult to decipher, and sometimes only a "best guesstimate" is the result. The entire census was reread after the original abstractions. Those who deserve thanks for this are: Morene HISAW, Ella Mae WHITE, Lois HAGOOD, Faith NOWLIN, and Marilyn HUDGENS. Thanks also for the help and cooperation of the staff at Paul Sullins Library in Crossett.

BIG BAD JOHN

Submitted by Frank E. DENSON

Jesse, "The Scribe", DENSON had a nephew, Joseph, "The Giant" DENSON. "The Giant" was over six feet tall, weighing 300 pounds, with iron strength. Tales of his prowess probably grow larger with each telling. Without doubt he was one of the largest men in the area. "He could easily lift a barrel of flour to his shoulder." This tendency to be tall, have large hands and feet has passed down through the generations to his descendants.

He had a kiln in Rankin County Mississippi and made brick. He donated his brick to build the Mt. Pisgah Baptist Church and he covered his parents graves with his brick in the Mt. Pisgah Cemetery.

Joseph's son, James Madison DENSON was in the Civil War and is buried in a Confederate cemetery in San Antonio, Texas. His wife was a CLEMENTS. The CLEMENTS family was related to the HARDIN family whose son, John Wesley, became the notorious gunman Wes HARDIN. One of James Madison's sons bares the name Hardin.

Wes HARDIN was the son of a Methodist minister and killed 44 men in various scrapes before he died in 1895. Central Texas abounded with his kinfolk, who were more than happy to shelter the young fugitive, as most considered him a fugitive from "carpetbagger justice". Two of James Madison's sons rode with Wes HARDIN in the Sutton and Taylor range war.

The two sons who rode with Wes HARDIN were John Madison DENSON (b. 1868 d. 1895) and Green Hardin DENSON (b. 1872). The following account concerns John Madison DENSON ("Big Bad John), who died at about 27 years of age in Pecos, Texas.

The open range was full of cattle, mostly unbranded. These cattle would drift down from the north in the winter and lodge against the Nueces River and the coast. They would bunch up there by the thousands in the winter. That was before there were any fences to stop the drift of livestock.

SUTTON and TAYLOR were partners, and they would go down there in the spring and drive everything they could out of there and keep it. They would take about fifty young cowboys with them. They finally fell out over the division of the stolen cattle. They fought, and each of them had a bunch of young gunslingers working for them. This range war lasted about 5 years. One of the leaders of the TAYLOR faction was John Wesley HARDIN. The government sent some soldiers to try to handle the situation. HARDIN already had a reputation for being hard to handle and they sent 5 soldiers to arrest him. He killed all five of them and left the country. From then on, HARDIN was a fearless outlaw and noted stage robber. He killed the Sheriff of Comanche County, Texas while resisting arrest and fled to Florida. The Captain of the Texas Rangers at Comanche learned he was going to Pensacola, so he beat HARDIN to Pensacola and arrested him when he stepped off the train.

HARDIN was tried and sentenced to hang. His sentence was commuted to 25 years. He served 4 years and was granted a pardon for good conduct. He went to El Paso and opened a law office.

About this time (1889) Eddy County New Mexico was being formed. The folks living in the county seat, also named Eddy (later Carlsbad) established their town as a god-fearing, law-abiding town. Saloons, gambling and liquor sales were not allowed. The gamblers, saloon owners and that ilk moved one mile south and formed their own town, called Phenix. This town was populated by gambling halls, saloons, butcher shops run by cattle rustlers, gun men and prostitutes. HARDIN and John M. DENSON were familiar around old Phenix.

From the EDDY ARGUS, June 8, 1894 issue comes the following account concerning John DENSON.

"Last Friday morning, at Ed LYELL'S saloon, one mile south of Eddy, a homicide occurred. Con GIBSON met death at the hands of J. M. DENSON."

"Briefly told, the story is as follows: GIBSON, who came from Pecos City, Texas, and secured a sub-contract on the railway extension, was on a drinking bout at 2 o'clock in the morning. DENSON, having alleged authority from his cousin, Constable William SMITH, was there, employed as a special officer. He also came from Pecos City and is a relative of the family of Marshal MILLER (son of Arrie DENSON and Millage SMITH), who was recently shot in Pecos by Sheriff FRAZIER. A discussion arose between GIBSON and DENSON over the Pecos feud, and GIBSON, as was his wont, was abusive. He was armed and had made himself a reputation for being dangerous by killing a Mexican in Texas. DENSON had done likewise and was armed.

"John CROWLEY and Ed COLLINS, employees of the house, S. P. BLAINE and J. M. RICE agreed in saying that GIBSON told DENSON to 'take a last drink', preparatory to being killed. DENSON took a drink, saying it would no be the last. The according to the witnesses, GIBSON put his hand to his waist to draw his pistol and was shot in the head.

"Ed LYELL testified that he and Constable SMITH took a pistol from the body of GIBSON. The weapon was hanging inside the waistband of GIBSON'S trousers and had been caught by a suspender fastening.

"The wounded man received prompt surgical attention from Dr. Van CLEAVE, who removed many pieces of bone from the brain of the sufferer, who lay unconscious at Hotel Hagerman until Tuesday last, when death came."

And from the June 15, 1894 issue of the EDDY ARGUS, we have this item. "J. M. DENSON assaulted W. H. MULLANE with a club the other day, because of the current article in relation to the killing at Phenix, but inflicted no serious injury. A fine of $5 was imposed."

DENSON'S troubles were not over. The September 22, 1894 issue of the EDDY DAILY CURRENT gives the following account of his activities.

"Juan AUREOLA, residing near Phenix, today caused the arrest of J. M. DENSON, the party who will be remembered as having killed Jas. GIBSON in LYELL'S saloon at Phenix some time since and who since was arrested and jailed at Midland, Texas for carrying deadly weapons, giving bond for his appearance there. AUREOLA and his wife have testified before Justice STALCUP this morning that DENSON had invaded their little home without permission and despite their protests tried to criminally outrage Mrs. AUREOLA, whereupon her husband tried to interfere. DENSON then pulled his six-shooter and fired four shots at AUREOLA, luckily without damage. DENSON was, for this offense, bound over in the sum of $300 to appear before the grand jury. Were he a Mexican and made an assault upon a white woman, what would be the results?"

It was common practice in those days for cattle rustlers in Texas to steal cattle in the bordering counties and take them to New Mexico, namely Phenix, to be butchered, thus destroying the evidence of their owners brands. Dee HARKEY, a government brand inspector and a part-time bounty hunter, wrote a book about his experiences in early Eddy County. Dee HARKEY tells of an experience with HARDIN and DENSON in Phenix and the eventual shooting of DENSON in Pecos, Texas.

"Billy BARFIELD called me out to Phenix one time to stop a fight between HARDIN and Lon BASS. BASS was a monte dealer and HARDIN and his friends were playing monte at his game. Lon won all their money, so HARDIN reached over into the bank money and took out a twenty-dollar stack of silver dollars. Lon drew his pistol and made him put the money back. That started trouble between them. When I got there, I asked BARFIELD where they all were. John Wesley HARDIN and John DENSON were in one of the back rooms in his saloon building, armed with Winchesters, and Lon BASS, Dave KEMP and Ed LYLE were over in the KEMP and LYLE saloon, armed. If they got together there would be killings.

"I went to where BASS, KEMP and LYLE were, arrested them and put them in a hack to take them to Eddy. I went back to get HARDIN and his men and brought them all back to town together. The judge put them under bond to await the action of the grand jury.

"That evening, John DENSON came back to town and got drunk. He had a Winchester with him. George FRIEDENBLUM had a barber shop in which six barbers worked. A Negro named Coleman had another barber shop in the same block a few doors down. DENSON went into FRIEDENBLUM'S barber shop first and gathered up FRIEDENBLUM and his barbers and then gathered up Coleman and his barbers and made them stand out in the street in front of Coleman's barber shop. He sat in the front chair with his Winchester across his lap so that he could watch these fellows in the street from the window. When one of them would move, he would holler at them to get back or he would shoot their eyes out.

"I came down the sidewalk and saw all the barbers standing out there and asked what was the matter. FRIEDENBLUM said DENSON had them all held up and wouldn't let them go. I went up against the wall of the building and walked down the wall to the front of the barber shop. DENSON'S chair was probably 5 feet from the entrance. I drew down on him, took his gun and put him in jail.

"I told Judge ROBERTS that I believed the best thing would be to make a compromise with that bunch and get them to leave the territory. DENSON was already under bond for a killing about two weeks before this. The Judge agreed to turn John DENSON loose without filing charges against him or any of them if they would leave.

"They decided they wanted to go to Pecos to see the Ringling Brothers Circus. EARHART, one of their pals, came along and they all agreed to leave and never come back. I heard DENSON and EARHART say that they were going to kill Barney RIGGS while they were in Pecos. Barney was an old friend of mine, so I wired him and told him to watch for them.

"HARDIN, DENSON and EARHART got to Pecos the next morning and they made a roughhouse of the town all day long. Mr. MURPHY was sheriff and he was afraid to say anything to them. Early next morning Barney RIGGS was tending bar in R. S. JOHNSON'S saloon. Barney was not a bartender, he just happened to be in there and relieved the bartender for a short time. EARHART and DENSON saw that he was there alone, so they went in and started a row. Barney had his pistol in the waist of his pants and he drew it, shooting EARHART through the head, killing him.

"The guard on Barney's pistol was open so as to keep the pistol from going down in his pants while he was carrying it. When he jerked it out, he failed to close the guard, and when he shot EARHART, the cartridges in the cylinder of the pistol came out so far that he couldn't revolve his pistol; he had to push the cartridge back and close the guard before he could fire the second time. When EARHART fell, DENSON first tried to get EARHART'S pistol, but he got scared (BIG BAD JOHN??) and started running. He ran out the door and Barney shot at him just as he got through the door, but missed him. Barney ran to the door and shot at him as he was running down the street and hit him in the back of the head and killed him. MURPHY, the sheriff, wired me about the killing and asked me to come to Pecos immediately. RIGGS had surrendered and made bond for the killing. But, Pecos was the home of Jim MILLER, and EARHART and DENSON were his men, and the sheriff was afraid MILLER would try to kill RIGGS to avenge his friends. I talked Barney into leaving town and that was the end of the trouble.

"John Wesley HARDIN was killed (1895) by John SELMAN in the Acme Saloon in El Paso."

[One hundred years later (Feb. 14, 1996) and Associated Press article appeared in THE ARKANSAS DEMOCRAT/GAZETTE.]

JUDGE LETS GUNSLINGER'S BONES REST IN PEACE

El Paso, Texas-- John Wesley HARDIN, a fugitive for much of his life, likely will roam no more.

State District Judge Kathleen OLIVARES ruled

Monday that the gunfighter's body should remain at El Paso's Concordia Cemetery, where HARDIN was buried in 1895 after being gunned down in an El Paso saloon.

Some of HARDIN'S descendants wanted to move his remains hundreds of miles away to Nixon, east of San Antonio, where he lived briefly and where his first wife is buried.

But the Concordia Heritage Association, a historical group, sued to keep HARDIN in El Paso, arguing among other things that removing the body would harm the historic cemetery. Other HARDIN descendants also opposed the move.

OLIVARES said after 100 years there is no compelling reason to dig up the remains. And she said exhuming HARDIN could cause irreparable harm to surrounding graves.

HARDIN'S descendants probably will appeal, said family lawyer Gene STEVENS, a great-great grandson of the gunslinger.

HARDIN, who put 30 notches on his pistol, spent a large part of his life as a fugitive in Texas, Florida and Alabama, or in prison.

He killed his first man at 15 and was said to have put away seven men by the time he was 17. But he maintained he never killed anyone that didn't need killing and always shot to save his life.

HARDIN was killed at age 42 in the Acme Saloon by Constable John SELMAN, with whom he had argued.

John Caldwell CALHOUN in the fall of 1860, at the age of seventeen years, entered the South Carolina College at Columbia as a Sophomore. In the subsequent spring of 1861 the Civil War broke out and he immediately volunteered for the Confederate Army in a company of cadets which hastened to Charleston, where they arrived at the time of bombardment of Fort Sumter. After the cadets were disbanded, he proceeded to Columbia and joined Capt. Thom TAYLOR'S Company, which formed a part of the Hampton Legion Cavalry, of which he was appointed Color Sergeant; he was, however, discharged on account of his extreme youth. Hastily returning to his home, he organized a fine cavalry troop of 160 men and was on his way to the front within one month of his discharge. His company was assigned to Adams Battalion commanded by Maj. James P. ADAMS, and afterwards merged into the 4th Regiment, South Carolina Cavalry, under command of Col. B. H. RUTLEDGE, which was one of the regiments composing Gen. M. C. BUTLER'S Brigade (since United States Senator from South Carolina), and it was under this commander Captain CALHOUN led the charge at Trevillion Station and continued to serve until the end of the war. When LEE surrendered, he returned to Fort Hill, only to find his ancestral home devastated, and the entire fortune of the family swept away. In addition, was the recent death of his father, which imposed upon him the immediate care and support of his widowed mother, together with provision for and the education of his young brothers, Andrew, James and Patrick, and sisters, Margaret and Lucrecia. Captain CALHOUN courageously assumed the life of a planter after the war, with restricted means and under absolutely changed conditions of labor, and by his energy, industry and integrity produced the resources to efficiently discharge the obligations of nature and affection. In 1866 he went to Alabama and entered into a co-partnership with James R. POWELL at Montgomery, for the purpose of colonizing negroes in the Yazoo Valley, Mississippi, to work plantation lands on the cooperative plan. This undertaking proved so successful that he sold out his interest to his partner in less than a one year for $10,000. He then went to Arkansas and repeated the enterprise on a much larger scale, retaining immediate supervision of and managing vast plantations, while inaugurating and effecting an immigration movement of negroes, which resulted in the removal of over 5,000 of them from the Carolinas, Georgia and Alabama to the Mississippi Valley. During the fourteen years of his connections with these undertakings, all his agricultural operations were carried on under the system of cooperative tenantry, which proved profitable to both the land owner and laborer, while it was the first practical solution of the way to efficiently assist the freed men upward in citizenship and to land proprietorship, and has since been generally adopted in that section. Previous to withdrawing from this occupation he organized his agricultural interest into the Calhoun Land Company and the Florence Planting Company, while occupying the position of President of each corporation for some time. So important was Mr. CALHOUN'S experience regarded by Senator BLAIR'S Senate Committee on Education and Labor, while sitting in 1885, in New York City, that he was called as a leading witness before the Committee and his testimony was given great weight and prominence in their reports to Congress, and is now quoted as standard authority on the subject. In 1884 Captain CALHOUN disposed of his plantation interests at a surplus net profit of over $100,000 and removed to New York City to enter the greater arena of finance. Among his first operations was the organization of a syndicate to settle and refund the state debt of Arkansas, which was successfully accomplished. His marked abilities soon brought him into prominence in Wall Street, where his efforts were largely directed toward financial interest of his beloved South, in bringing Southern securities into favor with capitalists and investors. He soon developed extraordinary capacity in his clear grasp of transportation problems and railroad management, especially in the South, and this promptly led to his classification among the giants of the street. His first notable operation was in inaugurating a combination to acquire control of the Richmond Terminal Railroad properties. These were afterwards utilized to absorb the Richmond & Danville and Eastern Tennessee Railway System. Simultaneously he led the movement to obtain control of the Central Railroad and Banking Company of Georgia and its tributaries, and under this regime he became a leading Director, is Vice-President and Chairman of its Finance Committee. He was also elected a Director of the Richmond and Danville Railroad and the West Point Terminal Company, which brought him into contact with the most prominent railroad magnates of America; so that, in 1891, he had a dominating influence in the management of 9,000 miles of railway. From this time on Captain CALHOUN rapidly became recognized as a leading citizen of New York. He was elected a member of the Manhattan, Reform, Lawyers, New and other Clubs in the Metropolis, of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, and of the New York Genealogical and Biographical Society. He was one of the chief originators of the Southern Society, which was established for the purpose of promoting fraternal friendships among Southerners resident in the city and the enlargement of amicable relations with citizens generally. He was President of the Society for some time and a leading spirit in its membership, and the interest and enthusiasm he inspired among them was always characteristic of his ancestry. At the fourth annual banquet of the Society on 22 February, 1890, when he was both the President of the Society itself and presiding over an assembly of 600 distinguished guest, with President CLEVELAND on his right and Bishop Henry C. PORTER on his left, his loyal and affectionate eulogy upon Jefferson DAVIS and Henry W. GRADY, who had died during the previous year, without offending courtesy or arousing partisan feeling, was regarded as a marvel of delicacy and oratorical skill. In 1893 Captain CALHOUN was appointed by Governor BERRY a Delegate from Arkansas to the Louisville, Kentucky, Cotton Exposition, and the succeeding year fulfilled a similar mission at the New Orleans Exposition. He was Vice-President of the Convention at Washington, which petitioned Congress in 1884 for the improvement of the Mississippi River and its tributaries, and was for several years, during his residence in Arkansas, President of the Levee Board of Improvements for the State and in all his business career has devoted untiring energy to the advancement and prosperous development of his beloved South. In 1890 he was selected as a member of the World's Fair Committee of One Hundred, by the citizens of New York, under the leadership of Hon. Chauncey M. DEPEW, and from them, was chosen as one of the Executive Committee of twelve. Captain CALHOUN was also one of the originators of the Sons of the American Revolution Societies, and has always taken a keen interest in whatever incites Americans to loyal pride in their forefathers. In 1887 he was appointed Special Ambassador to France by the Sons of the American Revolution, to confer with the President and Cabinet of the French Republic and also with the representatives of descendants of LAFAYETTE, ROCHAMBEAU and DE GRASSE and of the Society of Arts, Science and Literature, asking their cooperation in commemorating the 119th Anniversary of the signing of the treaty between France and the Colonies.

Lineage

The origin of the family has been distinctly traced back to the reign of Gregory the Great and connects with the Earl of Lexon in Dumbartonshire, Scotland, and one of the younger sons of King Conock of Ireland, who came to the same region at that period. The name of CONOCK soon became corrupted into COLQUOHOUN, COLQUMOUN, COLOHOUN and finally CALHOUN. The first ancestor who obtained the barony of COLQUOHOUN in Dumbartonshire, was Umphredics, who lived in the time of Alexander LL and his posterity have enjoyed successive possession ever since. His son Robert, who lived in the reign of King David, was ordered by that king to storm and take the castle of Dumbarton, which was strongly fortified. His written reply to the King, was "Si je puis"--"If I can." He effected the capture of the castle by strategy. Collecting his trusted friends and followers, he arranged for a great hunt in the immediate neighborhood, which drew out temporarily from the castle most of the defending warriors and retainers, and when the chase was at its height, he suddenly sounded the recall of his clan and hounds and took unresisting possession of Dumbarton Castle of which he was subsequently created Earl. For this deed of personal valor and warlike strategy, the crest was bestowed upon him. This consists of a Stag's Head, indicative of the chase, supported by two ratch hounds, with the motto, "Si je puis," and below this the words, "Snock Locken" the was cry of the CALQUHOUN clan. Succeeding Sir Robert was Sir Humphrey and after him Sir John, a man of parts and Governor of Dumbarton Castle in the reign of James II. Then came Sir John of Luss, who was made a Knight of Nova Scotia by Charles in 1602. He became such a zealous loyalist during the Civil War that he was fined 2,000 pounds by Oliver CROMWELL. Following these was Sir James, and after him Humphrey, fourth Baronet of Luss. From him came Patrick, who was given an estate near Glasgow, and then his son Patrick, IV, and succeeding him as Sir James again, who became Principal Clerk of Sessions and married Mary FALCONER of Edinburgh. His son Patrick, a lawyer, was father of James CALHOUN, who came to this country from Donegal, Ireland, in 1733, bringing with him his wife, Catherine MONTGOMERY, with four sons and one daughter, James, William, Ezekiel, Patrick and Catherine. The cognomens of James and Patrick have had the preference for eldest sons in the family. Their first settlement was in Pennsylvania and from thence they removed to the waters of Kenhawa, Wythe County, Virginia. They were driven from there by Indians after BRADDOCK'S defeat had established Calhoun Settlement, in Abbeville County, South Carolina, February, 1756. Their settlement here was again devastated and broken up in 1760 after a desperate encounter, with the Indians, in which James, the eldest son, and his mother were slain. Subsequent to this, Patrick, the youngest son, father of the celebrated statesman and great-grandfather of our subject, was appointed to the command of a body of rangers by the Provincial Government for the defense of the frontiers at the time of the Revolution, and rendered conspicuous and sanguinary service in fighting both Indians and Tories in defense of his country. On his mother's side, Captain CALHOUN'S lineage goes back distinctly to the reign of King William III, at which time a census of the officers of the Court and Government, both civil and clerical, shows the name of William GREEN (in 1693-1694) among the select body guard of in hundred under command of Charles, Earl of Manchester, in daily waiting upon the king. Their were required to be men of the best quality and not less than six feet high. Their attire consisted of scarlet coats to the knee, scarlet breeches, richly mounted with black velvet, broad crown caps with velvet bands, and distinguished by ribbons of the King's color. Robert, the son of the above William, was born in 1695, and emigrated to Virginia with his uncle Sir William DUFF a Quaker about the year 1717. Sir William settled in what is now King George County, Virginia, and acquired large landed possessions. Duff GREEN, son of the above Robert, was next in line of maternal ancestry. He married for his second wife, Ann, daughter of Col. Henry WILLIS, founder of Fredericksburg, Virginia, whose wife, Mildred WASHINGTON, was aunt and god mother of Gen. George WASHINGTON, which thus brought his children into blood relations with the Father of his Country; these ties also exist with the LEES, LEWISES and HENRYS of Virginia. John GREEN, the eldest son of this Duff GREEN, by his first marriage was father of the distinguished jurist and scholar, William GREEN, LL.D., of Richmond, Virginia (b. in 1809 and d. in 1880) who left a conspicuous history in jurisprudence. The above John GREEN was appointed a Captain of the Culpepper Minute Men, in the War of the Revolution and had reached the rank of Colonel of the First Virginia Regiment, when leading the advance of the storming party at Great Bridge. He was also seriously wounded in the engagement at Mamorouk. The previously mentioned William GREEN, who is nest in direct maternal line of Captain CALHOUN'S ancestry, was the youngest son of the above Duff. He became a Revolutionary soldier at the age of fifteen and was with WASHINGTON at Valley Forge in the winter of 177-1778, and afterwards with General MORGAN at Cowpens. He m. Ann MARSHALL, who was a cousin of Chief Justice John MARSHALL and also of the celebrated Humphrey MARSHALL of Kentucky. Nest in line was Gen. Duff GREEN, the noted diplomat, soldier and editor of Gen. JACKSON'S time, who served with General HARRISON'S command in the War of 1812. Gen. Duff GREEN'S maternal grand father was Markham MARSHALL, whose wife was Ann BAILEY, and these resided for some time in the Shenandoah Valley, Virginia, from whence they removed to Wayne County, Kentucky. It is said that the descendants of Ann BAILEY and Mildred WASHINGTON include more distinguished names than any other families in America. Gen. Duff GREEN of Kentucky was the father of Margaret Maria GREEN, who was his second child and Colonel CALHOUN'S mother. Her mother was Lucretia EDWARDS, a sister of Ninian EDWARDS, a distinguished jurist and first Governor of Illinois.

Sketches Of Early Ashley County Families

James HILL

James HILL, farmer, and one of the old residents of Beech Creek Township, Ashley County, Ark., was born in Tuscaloosa County, Ala., on April 10, 1818, and was one of six children - three sons and three daughters - born to John and Margaret (STOVER) HILL. The father was a native of Sevier County, Tenn., and emigrated to Alabama when that State was yet a Territory. He several times represented Talladega County in the Legislature, and held other county offices of trust and honor. He was under JACKSON in the War of 1812, and was the battle of New Orleans. Of the children born to his marriage three are now living, one in Bradley County, Ark., and another in Kaufman County, Tex. The father emigrated to Ashley County, Ark., in 1858, and died in 1862, at the age of seventy-five years. He was buried in Ashley County. The mother died in 1871, at the age of eighty-six years, and is also buried in this county. James HILL attained his growth in Alabama, and although his early education was limited, by observation and study he has become well informed on any subject. When twenty-one years of age he was united in marriage to Miss Martha MILLER, and they reared a family of eight children, five now living, and all in Arkansas: Jesse M. (residing in Alabama), James T. (residing in Phillips County, Ark.), George W. (living in Ashley County), John R. (also in Ashley County), and Minnie C. (wife of H. C. DADE, living at Poplar Bluff). Selling out in Alabama in 1858, Mr. HILL came to Ashley County, where he bought 480 acres. During the war he sold that place and moved to his present property, which consists of 500 acres of land, with seventy-five acres under cultivation. During the war he enlisted in what was called an Old Man's Company, and served eight days. The period following the war was more unsettled than during the four years of actual warfare, and it was from fifteen to eighteen years before the country actually recovered. Mr. HILL lost his wife in June 24, 1862, and on November 26, 1864, he was married to Mrs. WOOLDRIDGE, who bore him four children: Walter C., Viola, Charley A. and Hawkins. While living in Alabama, Mr. HILL held several local offices, and since is a member of the A. F. & A. M., and he and Mrs. HILL are members of the Baptist Church. On his farm his crop averages about twenty-five bushels of corn and three-fourths of a bale of cotton to the acre.

Jason C. HILL

Jason C. HILL, planter, Poplar Bluff, Ark. Among the many prominent men of Arkansas, who owe their nativity to Alabama, stands the name of Jason C. HILL, who is one of the successful planters of Ashley County. He was born on June 27, 1848, and is a son of Nathaniel and Sarah (CARGAL) HILL, both natives of Alabama. The parents reared a family of eight children - five daughters and three sons - three now living - two sons and one daughter. The brother of our subject, Reuben HILL, resides in Ashley County, and the sister, Lucinda, is the wife of John LUSK, and now resides in Louisiana. The father of these children died in 1849, and the mother in 1860, in Ashley County, Ark. Jason C. HILL moved with his parents to Morehouse Parish, La., when quite young, and, with the exception of two years during the war, remained there until grown. When twenty-one years of age he began farming for himself, working on shares, and the next year rented land, bought a mule, and began tilling the soil in earnest. He resided here three years, and the second year ran another hand to work for him. In 1874 he came to Ashley County, rented the MOORE place, on which he remained for five years, and in the spring of 1879 moved on his present property, having purchased eighty acres. He is now the owner of 60 acres in the home place and has eighty acres two miles below him. He has about seventy acres under cultivation, and aside from this he leases and works 125 acres. He also owns and operates a gin and grist mill, worth about $2,000, and with a capacity of twelve bales per day. His gin has all the modern improvements. In 1870 his nuptials with Miss Pollie SAMMON were celebrated, and to them were born eleven children, seven now living - five daughters and two sons: Susan J., Mary A., Ella S., Louisa, Henry, Ossie, Attie, Susie, Early, and twins born dead. Mr. and Mrs. HILL are members of the Methodist Church, and are held in high esteem by all acquainted with them. Mr. HILL is a member of the A. F. & A. M., and the K. of P. at Poplar Bluff, and of the K. of H. at Hamburg. In politics he is strictly Democratic. His principal crops are corn and cotton, averaging from thirty to forty bushels of corn, and frequently over a bale of cotton to the acre.

John D. HOLLAWAY

John D. HOLLAWAY, merchant and planter, Portland, Ark. The essential elements to success in any calling are keen perception, sound judgment and a determined will, supported by persevering and continuous effort, and that is termed genius has little to do with the success of men in general. We are led to these reflections by a perusal of the life of Mr. HOLLAWAY, who is one of the prominent farmers and successful business men of Portland Township. He was born near Portland, Ark., on July 7, 1851, and is a son of James L. and Caroline (BECK) HOLLAWAY, both natives of Franklin County, Miss. There the parents were married and resided until 1844, when they came to Arkansas and settled on the place which his children now own. When they first settled here, the only settlers in the limits of the present township of Portland were the BRADYS, and several other families. The father was twice married, his first wife dying in 1857, and in 1859 he took for his second wife, Miss Imogene CLYDE, who died in 1878. To his first union were born three children, and one child was born to his last, all now living and have families. The father was a Royal Arch Mason and died in 1870, at the age of fifty-seven years. John D. HOLLAWAY assisted his father on the farm until the breaking out of the late war, received the advantages of a good education in the common schools. After the war he attended school for a short time, and when seventeen years of age he took charge of the home place which he has been working ever since. He inherits his share of the home place, and later added to this 300 acres more, 200 acres of which are cleared. Mr. HOLLAWAY has been twice married, first on November 2, 1873, to Miss Lizzie, daughter of M. E. MUTSIDES of Georgia. She died in April, 1879. His second marriage was to Miss Sallie AUSTIN, on February 6, 1889, and they have one child, James Lee. Mrs. HOLLAWAY is the daughter of W. A. AUSTIN. Mr. HOLLAWAY is a member of the Masonic fraternity, Portland Lodge, and is also a member of the K. of P., at Hamburg. In 1886 he bought out Jackson, a partner of Cammack, and the year following bought out Cammack in the mercantile business at Portland. He carries a stock invoicing $1,500, and does an annual business of from $8,000 to $10,000. He carries a general line of plantation supplies.
